Group Launches Meth Fight

By Rickey Bevington

ATLANTA — The Georgia Meth Project is raising $6 million to launch a statewide awareness campaign.

The Georgia Meth Project has some stunning numbers that paint the picture of Georgia's meth problem.

Our state ranks 3rd in the nation for 12- to 17-year-olds who use meth.

Dealing with the drug costs the state $1.3 billion dollars a year.

Attorney General Thurbert Baker is helping raise the funds.

He says the need is urgent, and that quote "if we don't get a handle on this, it is going to ruin this state and country."
